

Dear residence students,

We are very pleased to share with you that KFLAPH has confirmed that following the release from isolation of the last household cohort yesterday, the outbreak in residence is now over.

Thank you to everyone for your understanding, particularly those who were required to isolate over the last few weeks. We know this was a difficult requirement and we very much appreciate your cooperation and support. It was because of the commitment of students, staff and the entire residence community that we were able to take action quickly and limit the spread of the variants of concern associated with the outbreak.

With the end of classes approaching and less than a month until the end of term, it's really important that you continue to be diligent in adhering to public health and residence restrictions. Now is not the time to let your guard down.

The Premier of Ontario is expected to announce a provincial shutdown early this afternoon. We will share further information about the impacts in residence later in the day.

We know that the end of term can be a stressful time. Please have a look at the links below if you need support or resources.

Sincerely,
The Residence Life and Services Team
